

Home Remodeling Builder Review – Rieck Construction

When searching for a home builder or general contractor, clients want to deal with a person with integrity and honesty who will give them a fair price. We have owned several homes and have had to deal with many contractors and realize how important it is to find someone who is efficient, conscientious and responsible.

We were fortunate to become acquainted with Michael Rieck after we built our home here in Arizona in 1994. Michael has done small to major repair work for us over the years and in 2008 did a major renovation which included electrical, stucco, painting inside and out, a new retaining wall and concrete replacement as well as additional repairs.

Michael employed the best subs for each task, which showed in their work. He is attentive to the job site and if there were any problems they were quickly attended to. From personal experience my wife and I can give Rieck Construction a most hearty and sincere recommendation. If you are interested in building a new home, remodeling or repairs of any size, then you would do well to put Rieck Construction at the top of your short list.
